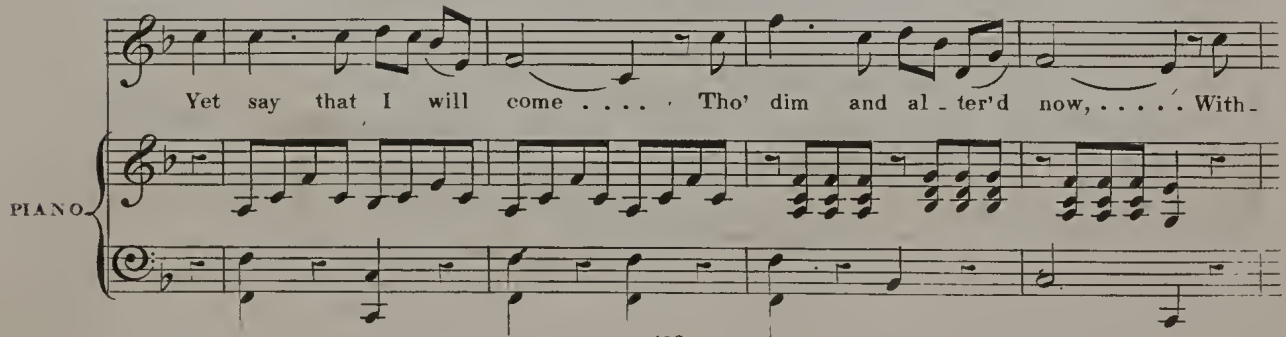
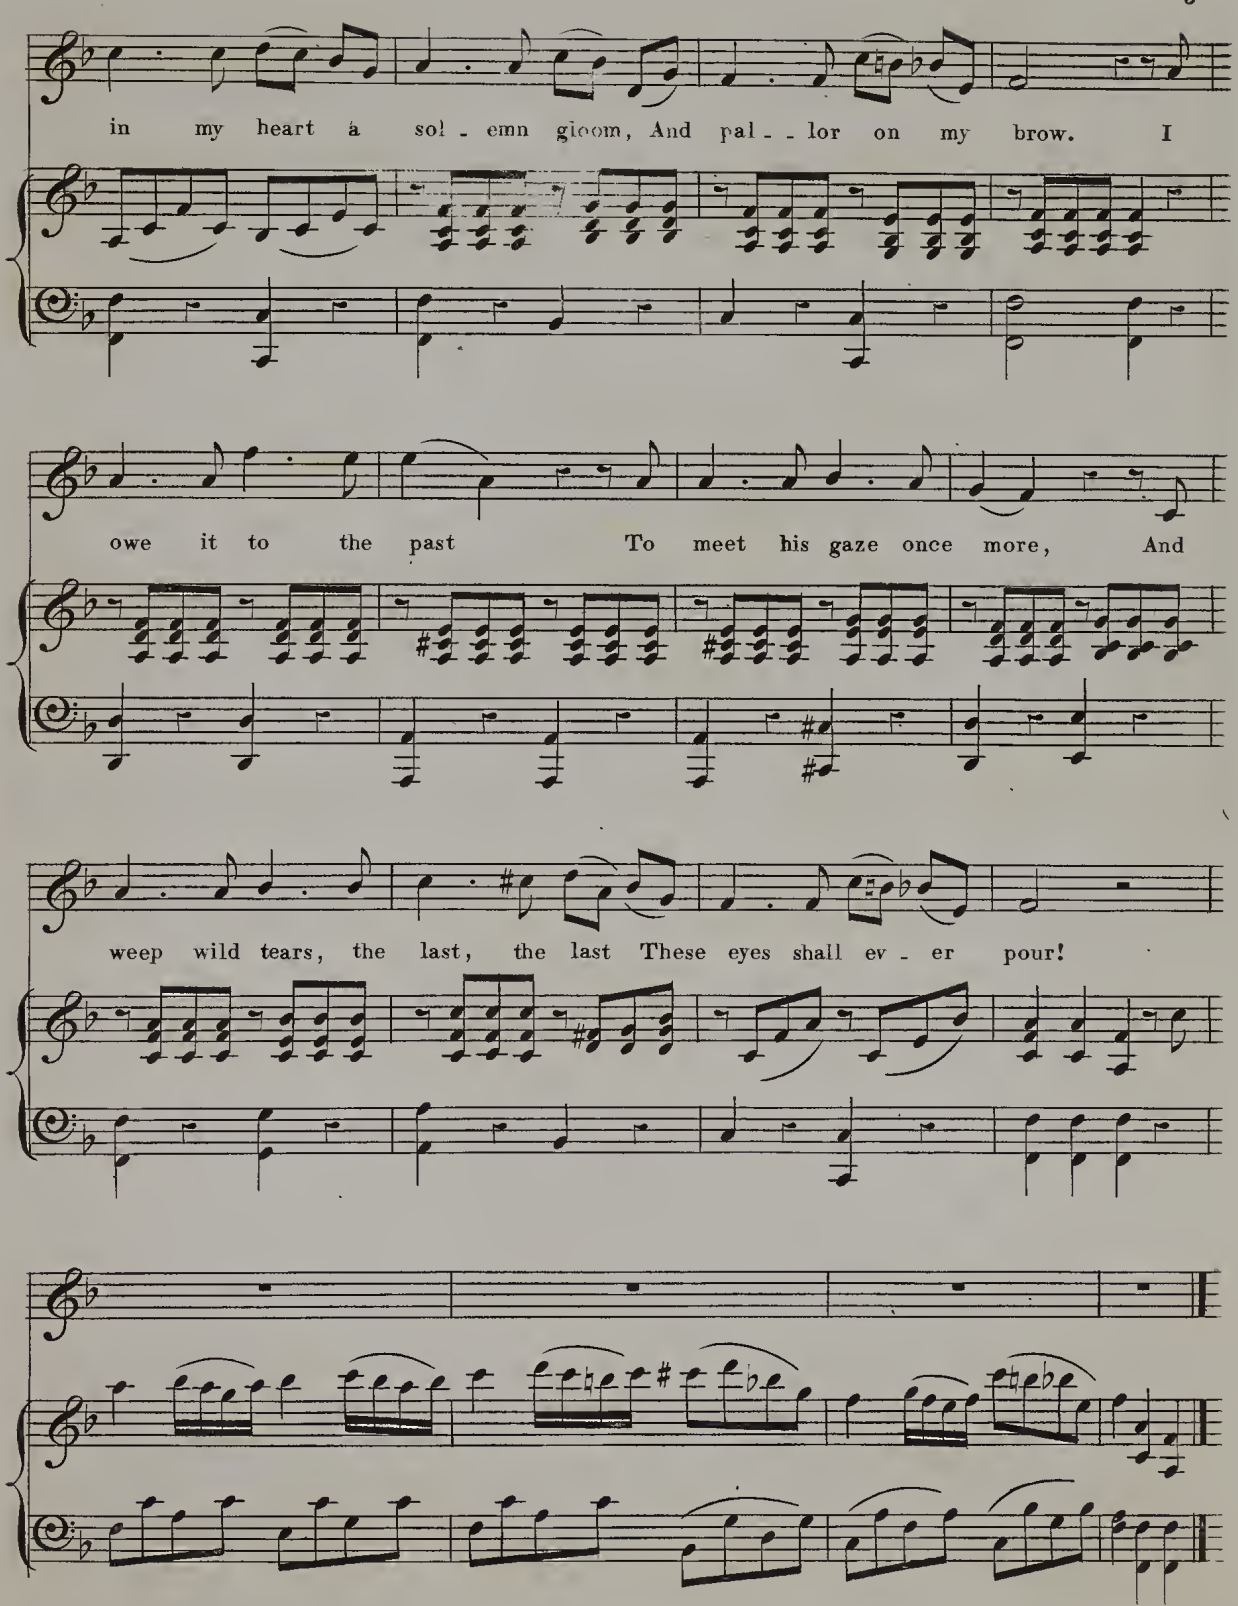
SECOND VERSE.

Say that when evening shades
Fall over land and lea,
I'll stand beneath those green arcades
Where once we wandered free.
Tell him the joyous tone
That welcomed him of old,
Hath changed, until the winds moan
Hath not a sound so cold.

THIRD VERSE.





in my heart a sol - emn gloom, And pal - - lor on my brow. I owe it to the past To meet his gaze once more, And weep wild tears, the last, the last These eyes shall ev - er pour!
